C.F.L. PLAYOFFS

Well, there down to the final four in the CFL. This weekend the eastern final sees Toronto host Winnipeg and the B.C. Lions travel to Common Wealth Stadium to meet the Edmonton Eskimos.Toronto is by far the best team in the East. Even when the Argo's lost Gil Fenerty they still continued to roll and easily finished first. The amazing thing about the Argo's is they survived injuries to key starters.
Dan Ferrone, Carl Brazely and all CFL all-stars went down and experienced replacements filled in. Offensively, the Argos are awesome, Gilbert Renfoe proved this season he is one of the premier QB's in the league. Jeff Boyd, and Daniel Smith are excellent receiver and before being injured, Fenerty was the leagues best running back.On the defense, the Argo's bent but didn't break. Even after Tank Landry went OWOL the Argo's defense was still tough.
Aggressive plays. But all together the boatmen should steam roll over Winnipeg.In all fairness to the Bombers, they have done well, even though Tom Clements retired.
Williard Reeves Tyrone Jones and Ray Bennett went south the NFL and Jeff Boyd left for the Argos.

Argos 36, Winnipeg 15.

In the Western Final the BC Lions should dispose of the Eskimos. B.C. seems to be possessed, the way they are behaving. They finish the season with 3 lopsided wins and hammered Saskatchewan 42-18. Matt Dunnigan, Athony Cheres and Anthony Parker lead a very balanced B.C. ground game. Dunnigan also has the luxury of throwing to Schenely nominee, namely, Dave Williams. Defensively, the Lions have really improved and seem to be mean, tough and ready for any team.
The Esks, on the other hand finished the season by losing 3 of their last 5 games. Damin Allen hasn't had a great year at QB and offensively the Esks seemed to have splintered. Defensively, Danny Bass leads the way, but it won't be enough to tame the Hungry Lions.

FAN SUPPORT AT L.U.: WHERE HAS IT GONE?

by Mike Hill

How many of you know where the Ben Avery Gym or the Laurentian Athletic field is? From the varsity games I've attended so far this year, it is obvious that the student body doesn't know where they are, or care one bit about varsity athletics at Laurentian University.

When I came to Laurentian in 1985, I had heard that this university's athletics teams were considered one of the best in the country, especially in the sports of basketball and soccer. Naturally, I was looking forward to seeing these teams play, surrounded by a bunch of wild, loud, and crazy spectators. Was I ever in for a shock! Seldom have I seen the gym filled to capacity. These rare occasions have occurred during the annual York vs. Laurentian basketball games (otherwise known as "Fork York") and the Toronto vs. Laurentian OUAA final in March, 1987. Other than these games, the bleachers in the Ben Avery Gym have been doing nothing but collecting dust.

Why isn't the student body (and faculty too) not supporting our varsity teams at Laurentian? I could probably come up with a ton of reasons, but here are just a few.

One of the bigger reasons is that you, the student, do not know when our teams are playing at home.

Posters are put up throughout the campus, informing you of upcoming home games, but are they noticed by the student body? Obviously not, I would like to see three or four large posters set up in heavy traffic areas on our campus, such as the foyer in front of the Great Hall, along the "bowling alley" in the Arts Building, on Student Street, under S.S.R. and of course, in the pub. This way, any knucklehead would be able to know if there are any varsity home games on weekends. Another way to find out about home games is to pick up a Varsity schedule at the athletic dept. in the phys-ed. building. There's plenty available, so pick one up. Also, to keep you better informed, I will try every week to give you a list every week of upcoming home games at Laurentian.

Probably, the biggest reason for the lack of fan support is just plain ignorance. Our students just don't care about our varsity teams, except for a very few, and the athletes themselves. This gives our university a bad reputation. Case in point, last weekend, the Lady Vees Basketball team held their annual Voyageur Invitation tournament. I would guess that not more than 30 Laurentian students attended any of the Lady Vees games.

The teams that travelled from across the country must think our school is a joke! The Lady Vees have been ranked in the top ten in Canada for many years and have made it to and won the CIAU championships. Do they deserve better support? You're damn right they do.

So what does the average student do on a Saturday night? Probably drink his or her face off, right? I'm not saying there's anything wrong with that, but I think there's nothing wrong with attending say a basketball game, cheering on our team, having a good time, and going out and partying after. A doubleheader basketball home game is usually over by 10:30 p.m. Tell me, do most good parties really get going before 10 p.m.?

Some of you must have attended the annual Panda football game, or another university's homecoming. Most would certainly say they had a good time. There must be a good number of people at Laurentian that would like to see that kind of school spirit here. Well, it's about time we did something about it.

Tomorrow night, Friday, November 18th, the men's basketball team open their regular season against the McGill University Redmen. The Vees are hosting their Voyageur Invitational Tournament this weekend, and this game against McGill also counts in the league standings. Our men's team is one of the fastest and exciting teams I've seen in years. What these guys lack in height, they make up in scoring. Ask anyone who has seen them play so far this year (if you can find one), and they'll tell you the Vees are very exciting to watch.

There's nothing more I want to see than the Ben Avery gym packed Friday night. Ask any basketball player, a noisy crowd really motivates a team and our athletes deserve it!

It's not like we have some brutal teams, either. Both the men's and women's basketball teams can finish first in the OUAA/OWIAA divisions this season. Each team has very good talent. Do the Sudbury Wolves who have won only four of the first 22 games deserve over 2,000 fans a game and our basketball team under 100? Gimme me a break!

If you have any ideas how to improve fan support for a varsity athletics, please write in. I would like to think I'm not the only one that feels this way. Remember, the men's basketball team hosts McGill, Friday night at 8 p.m. in their season opening game. Don't forget your pots and pans. See you there!!

VOLLEYBALL:

VEES LOSE 4 STRAIGHT

by Alan Clausi

Laurentian travelled to Toronto this past weekend to play Ryerson and U of T after entertaining the weekend before. The loss of Paul Courtney, due to a broken ankle, has partially contributed to the defeats the Vees have experienced throughout the past two weekends. The Vees dropped their first match 3-1 to Ryerson on Saturday, November 12th, as well as their second match 3-1 to the Blues on Sunday.

Although the games were close (Ryerson: 6-15, 15-10, 13-15, 11-15) (U of T 6-15, 15-13, 15-8, 15-10), the Vees just couldn't pull the chestnuts out of the fire. Maybe on December 3, and 4th, with a little fan support, the Vees can hopefully win some matches.

THE BIG E PICKS

SUNDAY

ATLANTA AT L.A. RAIDERS

Raiders come in as winners of 3 in a row, and 4 of the last 5. They also came up with a strong defensive effort last week in San Francisco. Perhaps I overestimated the Falcons last week as they came out as losers. I won't do the same this time. Take L.A.

CHICAGO AT TAMPA BAY

Chicago mauled the Bucs in week 10. Should do the same again. Ditka should have no problem watching this game from the sidelines. Take Chicago.

CINCINNATI AT DALLAS

Oh, how America's team has fallen. The Cowboys have lost seven in a row with the seasons only wins coming against Atlanta and Phoenix. The Bengals were surprised last week in K.C. falling apart in the 4th quarter. The Cowboys aren't much better than K. C. and the Bengals shouldn't blow 2 in a row. Take Cincinnati.

DENVER AT NEW ORLEANS

The Broncos came up with a determined effort last week against Cleveland, holding on to a spot atop the AFC west. The Saints, however shouldn't beat themselves as Cleveland did. The Saints should come up with their first ever win against Denver. Take New Orleans.

DETROIT AT GREEN BAY

This is the 115th meeting between these teams, and could be the worst game yet. Darryl Rodgers was fired as coach last week, but don't look for any miracle the rest of the season. The Pack has been playing slightly better in Milwaukee than Lambeau field the past few years. That's a good enough reason this week. Take the Pack in Milwaukee.

INDIANAPOLIS AT MINNESOTA

Dickerson was held in check pretty much last week and the Colts showed they still had enough resources to win their 5th in a row. The Vikings have won big the last few weeks and also seem to be on track for the playoffs. Should be a close game. Take Minnesota at home.

PITTSBURGH AT CLEVELAND

The Browns have won 5 in a row against Pittsburgh and won in week 5. They killed themselves with turnovers last week. The Steelers played the Eagles last week, but don't count on them for another good effort, two weeks in a row. Still hard to believe Nolls' and Landry's teams have two wins each. Take Cleveland big.

SAN DIEGO AND L.A. RAMS

Gary Anderson had a good day against Atlanta last week in an upset, but the Rams defense is a different story. The Rams offense was held to only 64 yards rushing last week and 198 in the air. They might not need much more this week against a low scoring Charger team. Take the Rams.

SEATTLE AT KANSAS CITY

As I said last week, K.C. has lost by more than seven only once and play well at home. Seattle should be up for the game. These teams have each won at home the last four years against each other. Look for K.C. to do well at home again.

NEW ENGLAND AT MIAMI

The Pats have won 5 in a row against the Dolphins including a win in week 10. One way or another, Flutie's been bringing team out on top. Miami still has Marino though and should be back after last week's embarrassment to Buffalo. Look for the Dolphins to stop Flutie and the Pats.

MONDAY

WASHINGTON AT SAN FRANCISCO

The two previous Monday night affairs against each other has seen each team win at home. Both teams were taken down a notch last week and both came in at 6-5. Should be a good Monday night game. Take San Fran.

N.Y. JETS AT BUFFALO

If the Jets have any hope of a wild-card birth left, they must win this one. Not likely. The Bills blew them out in week seven in New York. It might be a closer game, but you can't pick against the Bills at home. Take Buffalo.

PHILADELPHIA AT NEW YORK GIANTS

Another old rivalry as they meet for the 108th time (Giants 60-45-2). A win puts the Eagles in a tie at the lead with the Giants. New York shouldn't even be there. Take Philly.

PHOENIX AT HOUSTON

Both teams come in at 7-4. Oilers lost a heart-breaker on a last second field goal last week, and should have come into this game with a three game win streak, as does Phoenix. Should be another close game. Take Houston at home.

SPORTS AND HOCKEY
VEES STILL SEARCHING FOR FIRST VICTORY

by: R.W.

The hockey Vees remain winless after nine games this season and are off to one of their worst starts ever. This past weekend the Vees travelled to Toronto looking for that elusive first victory and after all was said and done they are still looking for it.

On Saturday evening the Vees played the U. of T. Blues. The host team doubled up on the Vees by a score of 6-3. Scoring for the Vees was team scoring leader Dennis Castonguay with two goals. The other goal scorer for the Vees was J.P. Hatala.

Sunday, the Vees played one of their worst games of the season and were thrashed by the York Yeomen 11-2. Jasmin Breton and Don Silveri were the goal scorers in this contest.

The Vees are at home this weekend as they host division rival McMaster for a two game set. Saturday, they play at 7:00 p.m. and Sunday the game starts at 2:00 p.m. If the Vees hope to salvage this season, they will have to start this weekend with a couple of victories.

As you can see, Laurentian will be going head-to-head with Toronto teams. With the Vees potent offence and strong defence, I think our team has an excellent chance of finishing first in the Central Division. It will be a long haul though, as the regular season is now 18 games, as compared to 12 in previous years. Laurentian will play at home and home series with each team in the OUAA's East and Central Division.

Getting back to the Vees opener against McGill, Friday night, it should be an excellent game to see. The Redmen have already played four regular season games, winning three of them, which is currently tops in the OUAA East Division. McGill has a potent offence, and included some good outside shooters. The Vees have some excellent outside shooters of their own, including Marcel Langlois, Lloyd Pollard and Rod Gilpin, to name a few. Laurentian will have to come up big along the boards and defensively to win the game. The Vees are coming off an impressive showing at the University of Alberta tournament last weekend, and will be up for their home opener Friday night.

Depending on the outcome of the McGill vs. Laurentian game Friday night, the Vees will play their second game of the tournament at 6:00 p.m. or 8:00 p.m. Saturday night. There'll be some exciting action at the Ben Avery Gym this weekend, so be sure to come out and support the men's basketball team.

The following is a schedule on the Laurentian Voyageurs Invitational Tournament:

Friday, November 18th:

Game 1: Queen's vs. Sudbury Senior Men's Team 6:00 p.m.

Game 2: McGill vs. Laurentian 8:00 p.m.

Saturday, November 19th:

Game 3: Loser #1 vs. Loser #2 6:00 p.m.

Game 4: Winner #1 vs. Winner #2 8:00 p.m.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL McMASTER UPSETS LADY VEES

Lethbridge Wins Voyageur Invitational

by: Mike Hill

The Laurentian Lady Vees Basketball team held their annual Voyageur Invitational tournament over the weekend, and were presented from participating in the final game, as McMaster upset Laurentian 70-67 in the semi-final game. The University of Lethbridge went on to defeat Mac 70-68, to win the Voyageur Invitational.

In their first encounter, the Lady Vees tangled with the Laurier Golden Hawks. Despite a slow start in the first half, Laurentian came on to hammer Laurier 84-55.

The first half of the game went along at a very slow pace, with an emphasis on defense by both teams.

The score remained close through the half, with the Lady Vees maintaining a slim lead. Late in the half, however, an offensive burst led by Chantel St. Martin and rookie Sue Foy gave the Vees a ten point lead 34-24. Laurier responded with some quick baskets of their own, cutting the lead to 36-30 at halftime. St. Martin had 10 points in the half, while Foy and veteran Kelly Edwards added 9 points each.

Laurentian came out strong in the second half. With the help of some good rebounding by St. Martin and Christine Stapleton, the Lady Vees were able to widen their margin. Midway through the half, the Lady Vees lead 62-46. Stapleton and St. Martin contributed 11 and 8 points respectively, in the half. With less than two minutes left in the game, Shirlene McLean hit consecutive three point shots and Laurentian went on to coast to a 84-55 victory. Top scorers in the game were Chantel St. Martin of Laurentian with 21 points and 10 rebs., and Kris Peel of Laurier with 11 points.

Lady Vees' coach, Peter Ennis agreed that his team played a much better second half, than first half. "Our team was effective trapping players in the second half", he said. After a Laurier player stopped dribbling the ball, two Laurentian players would surround the Laurier player and force a turnover or jump-ball. This was very successful in obtaining possession of the ball.

From a player's standpoint, it was a good game, as Coach Ennis was able to get his entire bench into the game. First year player, Sue Foy, had a very good game with 13 points, as did Kelly Edwards.

In other action, Thursday night, the McMaster Mauraders surprised Bishop's University 71-70, in a close game. Top scorer in the game was Lauren Crich of Mac with 18 points. The final game of the evening saw Lethbridge defeat the Concordia Stingers 62-40.

Friday night, the Laurentian Lady Vees suffered their first loss of the exhibition season, losing 70-67 to the McMaster Mauraders. From the first basket, McMaster was able to maintain a slim lead, despite a late comeback by Laurentian.

Mac came out with an effective full court press which slowed down the Laurentian offence. The Lady Vees, like last night, got off to another slow start and trailed 18-7, early in the match.

Three quick hoops got Laurentian back into the game, but many turnovers hurt the Lady Vees who trailed 32-27 at the half. Chantel St. Martin and Shirlene McLean provided most of the offensive scoring with 12 and 9 points each in the first twenty minutes.

Laurentian came out flying in the second half, but the ball wouldn't drop for them. During two offensive plays, the Lady Vees had four shots and two rebounds, but couldn't get the ball to sink.

McMaster continued to press in the offensive zone, but Laurentian managed to get around it better. Offensively, McMaster had a great night, hitting shots from outside and were also successful getting the ball inside to their posts.

Laurentian fought back late in the game, and gained a 1 point lead from a three pointer from guard, Shirlene McLean. However, it wasn't in the cards that night, as Mac capitalized on two turnovers and won 70-67.

Coach Ennis was unsurprisingly dissatisfied with his team's play. "Our veterans have to take more control out on the court and provide more consistency", he said about the evening's game. The Lady Vees' defense was an area of concern tonight. Two or three players would be covering their opponents, while the other players were being allowed to set up under the basket. "It takes all five players to have a good defense," Ennis commented. This certainly wasn't the case tonight. At the same time, the McMaster women's team deserves full marks in their victory. They came out tough and played a good game.

Top scorers tonight were Shirlene McLean with 20 points and Chantel St. Martin with 16.

In games played earlier Friday night, Concordia edged Laurier 60-59. Top scorer in the game was Carol Assalian, with 17 points for Concordia. The other game saw Lethbridge down Bishop's by the score of 70-56.

The Lady Vees final game of the tournament was played against the Concordia Stingers, with Laurentian coming out on top, 57-45.

The first half was characterized by a tight defensive play. The Lady Vees looked much stronger defensively, than last night's game holding Concordia to only 23 points in the half. Offensively, 3rd year post Chantel St. Martin lead Laurentian with ten points in the half, while rookie Sue Foy added 6. Lady Vees' Coach, Peter Ennis, gave three of his rookie players a lot of playing time in the half, which provided them with valuable playing experience. They made some rookie mistakes, but Laurentian held a 25-23 lead at halftime.

The Lady Vees kept up their strong defense in the second half, and held the lead throughout the half. Christine Stapleton was the offensive star of the half with 8 points, and rebounded well. Sheila Ivan and Shirlene McLean added 6 points each in the second half. Two consecutive baskets from Sue Foy late in the game, helped the Lady Vees to defeat Concordia 57-45.

Coach, Peter Ennis was happy with his team's play, especially after their earlier loss to McMaster. Although this was his team's third game in three nights, his team was not physically tired. Ennis was however, very disappointed with the fan turnout during the tournament and I don't blame him. There wasn't more than 100 people in the stands during any of the games.

In the championship game, the University of Lethbridge edged the tournament's surprise team, the McMaster Mauraders 70-68. The teams traded the lead throughout the game, the widest margin being 7 points. Both teams were tied 33-33, at the half. The second half moved along very fast, with Mac and Lethbridge trading baskets. Lethbridge guard, Shauna Molcak was the top scorer in the half with 12 points. Molcak went on to be named tournament MVP. Despite a late comeback by McMaster, Lethbridge hung on to win 70-68.

After Lethbridge received the championship trophy, the tournament all-stars were named. They were: Shirlene McLean and Chantel St. Martin of Laurentian, Heather Mackay and Vicky Harrison of McMaster, and Lethbridge's Jodi Savage.

Overall, the Lady Vees played fairly well in the tournament, but their loss to McMaster was a disappointment. Hopefully, Laurentian will have learned from their loss, that have to come out strong in the early stages of a game.

This weekend, our women's team travels to Montreal where they will participate in the Concordia Classic Tournament one of the pre-season's biggest tournaments.

Best of Luck, girls.

IMPRESSIVE AT U OF ALBERTA

The men's basketball team participated in the University of Alberta Golden Bear's Tournament on November 10-12, where they defeated the highly touted UBC Thunderbirds, and almost pulled off the upset of the tournament, losing to last year's CIAU champions, the Brandon University Bobcats by 5.

In Laurentian's first game against UBC on Thursday, November 10th, Rod Gilpin hit a three point shot with 30 seconds left in the game to defeat UBC 89-88. The Vees trailed by 6 with 1:30 left on the clock, and still managed to come back and secure the victory. The Vees tough defense in the last two minutes won the game. Mike Albert played extremely well under the boards and Dave GAmme came in late in the game to keep the UBC offence in check, shutting down the outside threat. Lloyd Pollard was selected game all-star, leading the Vees with 25 points.

The second game of the tournament saw Laurentian take on 1987-88 CIAU champions, the Brandon University Bobcats. Despite another well played game by the Vees, they lost 82-77, in a game the players said was "the one that got away". The teams went to the dressing room, tied 42-42 at halftime, and continued the close game through the second half. Midway through the second half, the score remained tied 62-62. Again, the Laurentian defense played a strong defence in the second half. The Vees were successful in shutting down Brandon's top player, Patrick Jebbison, who eventually fouled out of the game. Laurentian was down by 1 point with 18 seconds left, but had to take fouls, in order to obtain possession. This was unsuccessful, as Brandon went on to win 82-77. Top scorers in the game were Marcel Langlois and Lloyd Pollard with 16 points apiece.

In the Vees final game of the tournament, Laurentian felt the pressure of playing three games in three nights and lost to the tournament hosts, the University of Alberta Golden Bears, 94-82. The Vees got into early foul trouble in the game, and it cost them 34 of Alberta's 94 points came from the foul line. The three point shot kept Laurentian in the game. Marcel Langlois lead the Vees offensively with 18 points, including 4 three pointers.

From talking to the players and reading the Edmonton newspapers, the University of Alberta crowd was very impressed with Laurentian's outside shooting. An Alberta player was quoted as saying, "We built a lead in the first and then they (Laurentian) just started bombing the three-pointers". Indeed, the Vees three-point shooting was the talk of the tournament, and will certainly become an offensive weapon this season.

Fan turnout, at the tournament was very good, as almost all games were played in front of a full house. "The school spirit out there was amazing", said Laurentian guard, Rod Gilpin. "Everytime we came down the court, the crowd was anticipating who would hit a big shot next", he added.

Laurentian students will get the opportunity to see their Vees play this Friday night, when they host McGill Redmen, in Laurentian's season home opener. Game time is 8:00 p.m., so don't miss it!
